Post processing {#sec3} ================== This is the phase in which the finished model is shown and has a number of options for further manipulation of the object. 3.1. Quality control {#sec3.1} ------------------ The model can be saved and, if successful, exported as a STL file. We recommend to check this first. If this is not successful, the most likely explanation for this is a problem with the model, in which case the developer of the software should be contacted. 3.2. Appearance {#sec3.2} -------------- The model can be modified for appearance purposes, for example changing the color of the tissue (see also below). In the example presented in this paper, we have chosen a very light green, but the color can be changed in the relevant menus. 3.3. Manipulation {#sec3.3} ---------------- In this phase the model is shown in two dimensions as a schematic drawing. These can be rotated and mirrored, which is illustrated in Fig. 4{ref-type="fig"}. In addition, the visible elements can be modified in various ways, such as opening, clipping, removing, or joining, for example. This is illustrated in Fig. 5{ref-type="fig"}. 3.4. 3D printing {#sec3.4} --------------- For physical 3D printing, the model can be opened with a viewer, and the slices for the printing can be selected. In the example presented in this paper, we chose the Titanium Sintered model, which can be printed in various materials, such as TiAlV and Ti6Al4V. After the printing has been completed, a model can be printed and 82157476af
